About Us

Forbes Bros. is a privately-owned family business that provides engineering, procurement and construction for our core services which include Transmission, Distribution, Civil Underground, EV Charging Stations, Telecommunications and Substations. Forbes Bros. operates in both Canada and the United States.

Forbes Bros. imports goods through various manufacturers and distributors across the globe as required for the successful completion of our projects. Forbes Bros. acknowledges that there could be risk of child labour within current supply chains, especially in industries and regions where labor standards may be less stringent, or processes and procedures may be lacking. Through our continued growth and geographic expansion throughout North America, we strive to seek long-term relationships with suppliers that share the same strict standards of sustainability and human rights, product excellence and coverall compliance with all local laws and regulations.

Policies on Slavery and Human Trafficking

Forbes Bros. is committed to doing business in full compliance with all local laws and regulations and has implemented a Supplier Code of Conduct to ensure our supply chain partners conduct business ethically and with the same high standards. Through new supply chain processes Forbes Bros. aims to partner with suppliers that do not contribute to exploitation and harm to vulnerable populations.

Internal Accountability

Forbes Bros. employs approximately 1,200 employees across Canada and the USA. Our organization is proud of our values and work ethic. We set high standards, which include slavery and trafficking rules. Forbes Bros. Code of Conduct (available on our company intranet site) reflects the requirements that our employees abide by all applicable laws and regulations.

Forbes Bros. believes that a diverse workplace is a strong workplace. We actively promote and encourage working in a socially responsible manner.

What's Happening Today

- Supplier Verification

Forbes Bros. is committed to fair labor practices within our supply chain and has policies and procedures to improve supplier verifications. Our suppliers will be reviewed on an ongoing basis and will be required to advise Forbes Bros. of any changes which may affect compliance. Before any new suppliers are considered, pre-sourcing audits may be considered.

- Supplier Audits

Forbes Bros. may require critical suppliers to undergo independent audits to ensure compliance with agreements. Forbes Bros. understands the complexity of our supply chain and we will continue to evaluate the risks associated with modern slavery. Forbes Bros. will continue to develop and refine our policies and procedures.

- Supplier Certification

All our suppliers are required to sign a statement, which is part of the Supplier Code of Conduct, that certifies the materials incorporated into their products were produced in compliance with slavery and human trafficking laws in Canada. Our suppliers are also being asked to provide their own Supplier Code of Conduct if its available.

Training & Development

All employees who actively participate or are directly involved in any decision making within our supply chain management are provided appropriate training so that they are able to understand and identify all risks associated with modern slavery. This educational component has been shared companywide to ensure we continue to meet or exceed our corporate responsibilities.
